CONCLUSIONS

- SYRIZA is firmly in the lead despite ND's improved performance. Unless ND changes tactics it will be difficult to reverse the lead. Fear of GREXIT alone will not be enough.
- Polarisation has increased and thus smaller parties are squeezed.
- Papandreou's new party does not seem to make any difference at the moment remaining well below the 3% threshold.
- Undecided voters will determine the final result.
- SYRIZA may still manage to get an overall majority if it avoids major policy blunders.
